

DAY IN THE LIFE OF A 1960'S CHILD

One sunny Monday

I woke up and went into my sister's room to wake her up because we were late for school. In our school if you are late you get you get in big trouble we went downstairs to get our breakfast our mam had made us porridge. We got dressed I was wearing a t-shirt and a skirt. Then we headed on our long walk to school

Before class I played marbles with my friend Mary. At 9 am the teacher shouted at us to come into class. We sat on our seats, class started off with English the teacher gave us words to spell, while I was doing my work I dropped a blob of ink on the sheet, I tried to cover it up before the teacher would notice, because I knew I would get a smack of the ruler. The teacher soon noticed as we had a small class – 8 pupils., and a smack I got.

Lunch was at 12 pm I ate bread and jam, and had school milk to drink then I played my favourite game hop scotch

After lunch we had history, and we learnt about the Great Famine, this was my favourite subject. School finished at 3pm, and my sister and I walked home. When we went home I had to do my chores bringing in the sticks and turf. Then we had dinner – potatoes bacon and cabbage

I went to bed at 8pm and said my prayers
